Offshore APT - In recent years the “asset protection trust” has become an increasingly common tool for individuals trying to navigate living and working in our litigious society, with approximately twenty states now having followed Delaware’s early lead in enacting such legislation. At the same time, such trusts can also be created in certain foreign jurisdictions that claim the protection to be better offshore. This presentation will compare and contrast the domestic and the foreign variety of such trusts, focusing on the particular client, and circumstance, in which one might be better (or worse) than the other.

Practitioners and corporate fiduciaries need to be aware of and prepared for these risks. This program will survey some of these risks and possible outcomes arising from disputes over (1) ESG investing by fiduciaries, (2) changes of trust situs and governing law, (3) quiet trusts and the duty to disclose, (4) flawed implementation of non-judicial trust modification mechanisms and (5) changes in applicable standards of liability and indemnification.”*
